Situated on London's trendy Bermondsey Street, just minutes from London Bridge, the Fashion and Textile Museum is a centre for contemporary fashion, textiles and jewellery. The museum was founded by renowned British designer Zandra Rhodes but the venue has been extensively redeveloped and is now operated by Newham College.

Designed by Mexican architect Ricardo Legoretta, the building provides a versatile venue for all types of events. The refurbished Grand Gallery and Mezzanine Gallery can hold up to 160 and 60 guests respectively, or 250 when combined. The Grand Foyer has a capacity of 60, while the Fashion Studio can accommodate up to 80 people. Organisers hosting events at the venue will now also benefit from improved AV facilities and new meeting and IT training rooms.
